

HOLIDAYS & WISHES

When your child is having any type of treatment for retinoblastoma it's a challenging time for the whole family, so it can help to unwind and spend time together away from the hospital. There are many organisations which offer holidays to families whose children are having - or have had - treatment for cancer, or have a visual impairment. Holidays are often subject to availability so check each organisation's criteria before applying.

GENERAL SOURCES OF INFO

There are other sources of supported breaks you can find, such as hospital and local charities. Some of the treatment hospitals have associated cancer charities which support local children. A number of these support groups also have caravans which you can use, so it is worth finding out what your local cancer charity can do. You can find more local trusts and charities offering support on the Turn2Us website: grants-search.turn2us.org.uk/

Other possible sources of information about funded or reduced cost breaks include:

- Your local authority website
- Your trade union or military association
- RNIB has a guide to holidays for blind and partially sighted people www.rnib.org.uk/living-with-sight-loss/community-connection-and-wellbeing/leisure/holidays/

Please bear in mind that holiday/wish offers and criteria can vary due to a charity or organisation's financial status.

Some charities offer a complete package but with others you may have to contribute towards the costs - for example you may need to organise and buy your own flights, arrange holiday insurance or make travel arrangements. Often the organisation can assist in doing this so it's worth asking about all of their services. CHECT is unable to recommend specific organisations and is not responsible for the content of their websites. For more information, please speak to your CHECT support worker.
